

Why are QA people Not Given Any Respect?

Before We Start

Become Better QA

- 30 Days of Automation Testing Playlist
- 30 Days of Selenium (With Framework)
- 30 Days of API Testing with Postman
- 30 Days of API testing with Rest Assured
- Karate API Testing for Beginners

Link to Playlist

<https://sdet.live/30days>

In Terms of Work

- Companies don't vision and objective on Quality.
- QA's are not given respect
 - Because companies have less faith
 - You don't take more responsibility
 - You don't help or contribute in the projects
- Other people think that QA is Easy job.
- Due to production issues / pas leaked bugs QA losses the respect.
- They ignore the fact that Quality is everyone's job and blame only QA
- Ignoring QA estimates about automation, manual testing & documentation.
- QA is not a critical for them, they think QA's makes project release slow and they are gatekeeper
- Developer ignore QA bugs.
- PM's or Stakeholder have very poor vision about the quality of their product.

In Terms of Salary

- Dev vs QA
 - Easy factor
 - Only helping to release a product
- People look at QA (Quality Assurance) jobs negatively

In Terms of Opportunities

- Allowing them to only test the build not contributing to UX issues
- Allowing them as helping hand for PM, Designer.

My Experience as QA

- It doesn't happened with all the QA.
- In many Big firm QA's are respected.
- It depends how much you take responsibility, and solve other's problem
- If you provide immense value you will be respected.
- You can create your profile like that if there is product given to you you will own It and provide Sensible P0, P1 bugs
- Ask yourself, Do you want to become a QA?